

SHOUP IS IN DIRE DISTRESS.

Has Made a Very Curious Spectacle of Himself.

MIGHTY LITTLE COMFORT.

THE FUNNY SIDE TO THE WHOLE AFFAIR.

Reacts His Case on the Supposed Interview With Sweet—Facts in the Case Are Well Understood in the Senate Chamber—Sweet and Shoup Compared.

Washington, Dec. 28.—[Special.]—Poor Senator Shoup, with his elongated and somewhat grotesque ambition to succeed himself as the Republican Senator from Idaho, is in a bad way. In the first place he made a curious spectacle of himself by showing what an influence the office-holding habit had gained over him by declining at first to have his name placed before the people or legislature and then, yielding upon the flimsiest pretext that offered itself for re-entering the fight. Whatever might be the virtues of his defense, of his despatch of Sweet, there can be no denying the fact that Shoup's present course presents symptoms of the possession of a large and fine variety of "political cravens" in his brain. He is not dignified. He is simply chasing off with determination on his brow and in his mind. The considerations of his own dignity should have kept him out of the race.

Convulsion Mightily Small.

But now that he is in it with determination and a barrel of money, there is little consolation for him which ever he may look. At best, he has but his own words to support his claim to being fair in re-entering the race in view of the pledges he gave to his friend. No other evidence of the truth of what he said has been offered by anyone but him, and the exception of Senator Pettigrew, who, presumably in a moment of temporary mental aberration, was interviewed by Shoup and allowed the latter to endeavor to uphold himself by quoting him as saying that he was lurching one day in the Senate restaurant with the members of the Idaho delegation and distinctly remembers that Sweet, at that time declared he would not be a candidate unless he was nominated by the state convention.

Quite Humorous.

The funny part of this is that Shoup's quidling Pettigrew has mixed things up worse than ever. Shoup, in making the plan for his beautiful romance about the withdrawal of Sweet, did not lay the scene of the plot in the Senate restaurant. On the contrary, he lays particular stress on the fact that the momentous interview on which he bases his candidacy, was held in Sweet's room, where no vagrant car could hear the words of wisdom that are supposed to have fallen from the lips of such Republican politicians as Sweet and Shoup. Therefore Pettigrew's statement does not corroborate anything Shoup has said, and the later assertion of Pettigrew that he does not favor Shoup's candidacy, makes matters worse.

That Sweet ever made such a statement in the Senate restaurant is denied by both Sweet and Dubois; and Pettigrew says that both were present. Pettigrew will not insist upon it, as he does not care to be drawn into the very odorous fight any further than he has already been drawn by Shoup's palpable indiscretion in not regarding his confidential statement as not being for publication.

His Whole Case.

Shoup rests his whole case on the supposed interview with Sweet in the latter's room here in Washington. At that interview the Senator says Sweet promised that if the nomination was not given him by the state convention he would retire from the race. While Sweet does not desire to take up the controversary any further, and relies wholly on his letter, which will show his view of the matter, he says that the only time he mentioned such a thing as his withdrawal was not to Shoup. The Herald correspondent is in a position to be reasonably certain that the statement in a very guarded way was made to Dubois, and that it was made for the purpose of drawing out Dubois, and not intended to be taken as compromising. Dubois at that time was fighting Sweet. He had openly declared through the Herald and other sources that he would give his support to Heyburn. Dubois did not like Sweet and had said some very hard things about him. Under such circumstances, Sweet was perhaps justified by the rules of politics, to use finesse in his conversation with Dubois, and, with a purpose of drawing him out, to make some statements which he would not have made if he had been talking to one who was favorable to him, and deserved to be dealt with openly. Such a thing as he did take, is not unusual in diplomacy and politics.

It was under such conditions as these that Sweet said to Dubois, that if McConeill was nominated for governor, he did not see how he could be a candidate as he was from the same town as McConeill and had no money to sustain a long contest.

Soon after that Shoup, who had evidently heard of this circumstance, came up like he had been blown by a summer squall, and, presumably after an interval of some days, he came back among western Congressmen, opened the ball. Sweet pays particular attention to this interview in his letter and emphatically says that he told Shoup he did not intend to withdraw from the race and he had not said he would make his canvass contingent upon anything in relation to McConeill. In fact, Sweet says in his letter that he walked down the flight of stairs which leads from his roomery, bachelor quarters, to impress the "old" man with what he had said, and to leave him no ground for withdrawing his support. In view of the fact that The Herald correspondent has had several personal experiences where Senator Shoup "misunderstood" plain words in plain English, it does not appear improbable that in this case he did the same thing and understood just what he desired to understand.

Facts Well Understood.

The facts in the case are fully understood in the Senate chamber, and it is the wish of most of the Westerners that Sweet shall be returned. They cannot see any honorable way in which Shoup can come back after his unequivocal stand on withdrawing. Many regret that he did withdraw, and some will miss those frequent occasions where the Colonel showed his Western hospitality by asking them to nominate their poison. But even the probable diminution of the senatorial boom in light of the fact that Shoup, notwithstanding the impression among the latter's constituents that he can move the Senate and executive, and all other things that pertain to Washington, with a wave of his hand.

STANFORD-CHICAGO.

The Palo Alto Boys Turn the Tables on Their Visitors.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 28.—Stanford turned the tables on the Chicago university football team today by beating them by a score of 12 to nothing. The day was rainy and that kept the attendance down. Stanford had evidently profited by its experience in the first game with Chicago for the play today was in marked contrast to that of Christmas day. It was quick and snappy; the team work was good. The teams were practically the same as those that played around the ends and bucking the center. A goal was kicked, making the score 6 to 0.

In the second half Chicago braced up somewhat and tried to wear Stanford out. The Palo Alto boys met them steadily and stood them off in fine shape. Runs by Kennedy, Reynolds, and Hotel brought the ball to Chicago's five yard line and Kennedy was pushed over, making the score 12 to 0. No more point were made during the game. Nichols, of Chicago, made a run of 25 yards, and Reynolds, of Stanford, a brilliant one of forty yards.

MARKET OPENED SOME HIGHER.

Held Firmly Until a Renewal of the War With the New Jersey Central.

GENERAL LIST UNAFFECTED

IN LATE DEALING MARKET WAS DECIDEDLY STRONG.

Sugar Moved Within a Narrow Range—Trading in Bonds Light—Course of Values Upward—Chicago Wheat Opened Very Sick, But Became Strong and Closed at an Advance—Money on Call Easy.

New York, Dec. 28.—The market opened a fraction higher and was held firmly until a renewal of the war on the New Jersey Central, which forced the stock, which had advanced  $\frac{1}{8}$  in the opening trade, down  $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. The rest of the list was not affected by the rally and in fact some of the specialties made material gains during the progress, notably Bay State Gas, Laclede Gas preferred and Corgage guaranteed. When the selling of New Jersey Central lost its force, the shares quickly rallied, and at the close had regained  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent. of the early decline, and making a gain on the day of  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent. Chicago Gas was in good buying demand throughout, closing at the best figure touched, and 1 per cent. above yesterday's final sale. Reading was very active in the loan market, after an early decline of  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent., rallied  $\frac{1}{2}$ , closing  $\frac{1}{8}$  below the highest. In the late dealing the market was decidedly strong, and closed at or about the best of the day, the chief gains being Corgage guaranteed,  $\frac{1}{8}$ ; Corgage common,  $\frac{1}{8}$ ; Tobacco, and the groupings  $\frac{1}{8}$ . Colorado Coal broke  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent.

One of the features of the trading during the week was the persistent drive against the Corgage shares. The final sales of last week were: Common, 14; preferred, 12; guaranteed, 22. The low point of this week the common had declined  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent to  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; preferred,  $\frac{1}{8}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$ , and guaranteed  $\frac{1}{8}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$ . In the later dealing the shares rallied and the guaranteed is the only one of the group which shows a material loss on the week. Compared with last Saturday, the guaranteed is off 2 per cent. The first mortgage bonds were also depressed during the week and sales were made at 20, seller 60 and 60 regular, against 63; last Saturday. Subsequently the price was advanced to 65, which is the current quotation. A drive against the common forced New Jersey Central from 69  $\frac{1}{2}$  down to 67  $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Laclede common dropped 1 per cent from 102 to 101, and Delaware & Hudson, 1  $\frac{1}{2}$  to 12.

During the latter part of the week these shares were released from pressure and made a quick recovery. Laclede advanced  $\frac{1}{8}$ ; Delaware & Hudson,  $\frac{1}{8}$ ; and New Jersey Central  $\frac{1}{8}$ .

Sugar moved within a narrow range, and the fluctuations were confined within a radius of  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent. The stock shows a loss of only 2 per cent. on the week, the preferred is down  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent. Total sales for the week 462,257.

Trading in bonds today was light, the total sales being only \$200,000. The course of values was in an upward direction, but the appreciation was slight. On the week, the changes in prices are in a majority of cases toward lower figures. Money on call easy, at  $\frac{1}{16}$  per cent.; last loan, 2 per cent.; closed offered at 2 per cent.

Prime mercantile paper,  $\frac{1}{16}$  to  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent.
